

Methamphetamine has become the biggest drug threat we face today. Although marijuana continues to be the number one drug of choice, methamphetamine has surpassed cocaine in abuse across the nation.

See Meth

Meth is a stimulant that imitates the way the chemicals in the brain manufacture and transmit messages of gratification to the brain's pleasure center. An individual can become dependent on meth almost immediately after

Stop Meth

Identifying a Meth User

- increased heart rate, blood pressure, and respiration
- flushed or tense appearance
- dilated pupils
- bloodshot eyes
- a chemical odor on their breath
- excessive sweating
- rapid speech
- inability to sleep or eat
- severe weight loss
- rotting teeth
- scars and open sores
- paranoia
- hallucinations (often times auditory)
- repetitive behavior
- memory loss
- depression
- psychosis
- teeth grinding
- restlessness
- tremors

Acute exposure to meth lab chemicals can cause:

shortness of breath

cough

chest pain

dizziness

lack of coordination

chemical irritation

burns to skin,

866-303-METH

Toll Free Tip Hotline